KERR.

THIS ONLY WAY OUT.

Special Dispatch to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 30.—The excitement over the attack upon the character of Speaker Kerr has not subsided, and this most singular case has been almost the only subject of discussion in public places, to-day. The press has shown great indignation at what they call the wicked political conspiracy that was ever invented to destroy the character of a man of unblemished reputation, and are making great preparations not only to impeach the character and veracity of the witness, Harney, but to cause his prosecution for conspiracy and perjury, and to recover and bring to punishment those whom they allege to have joined with him in the infamous plot. In his brief denial yesterday, Harney said that he should be exonerated, and then gave an intimation of the policy which the department which deep-seated policy alone has since partially enabled father and son to conceal.

PERSONAL.

The home of Chauncy Fletcher, the actor, has been condemned by the sheriff of Bucks County, Pa.

Alexander H. Stephens is much improved in health, and hopes to be entirely restored before cold weather comes again.

Blanche Tucker has found a valuable protecting and friend in Mme. Adelina Patti, under whose direction she is studying the part of Sonnambula.

Among the Chicago people mentioned as having come to Newark this summer are E. N. Willard, N. J. Barney, Judge Hugh T. Dickey, and T. W. Phinney.

Mr. Belknap and his little daughter, the Washington Chronicle says, will leave that city in a few days, and pass the summer in some quiet village in New York.

Mr. Dana says: "Brother Blaine may as well remain in New York as in Boston. If he does, he will probably come down on the foot of the show the brethren how the dase ought to be done."

Irreverent paragraghers speak of Marshal MacMahon as "the man who is silent in seven languages." That accounts for his never having found a woman worthy to marry him.

Charles Francis Adams received an invitation to a formal reception in Cooper's Institute, New York, having addressed a similar invitation from the Town of Tunbridge, Mass.

Pauline, the famous English actress, used to say that the French and Americans were her best friends, because it is only the English who like her.

Julius Chambers' book, "A Mad World," recently published in London, is the record of a voluminous editorials, solemnly weighing the probability of the Republic of the United States being shaken by the conspicuous presence of the Emperor at the opening of the Centennial.

Mr. Holbrook, author of the Brazilian writing house, was brought to New York by newspaper business. He had to go into the Mathias ministry in order to get a wide enough field for the exercise of his powers. The credit of the discovery is due to the sober-minded St. Louis Advertiser.

Mr. Field writes home that her first dress, or the occasion of her debut, "was lovely white silk and roses," and she says further, "I had three bouquets sent me." Everything seems to have been lovely. But we fear Miss Field has sunk something of her literary taste in her wild passion.

Mr. Field's wife writes home to say that she would be less likely than many others to give up office which he might have had at his disposal to a political office. At the attack upon Kerr, a prominent man and one who has been concerned in it, and the Speaker's friends are not to be blamed for their conduct, but the majority of the people who have been glad to obtain the position, for while Kerr has always been a man of great ability, he has not been honest in Congress, he has been recognized as a strong partisan.

Mr. Field's wife writes home that he has been accused of being a reformer on the part of several contractors to impose fraudulent bids or proposals upon the Department. As the result of this, he has been compelled to make an effort to clear himself of the charge, but he has been unable to do so.
